CUSTOM ART BY SHEEMA MUNEER

Original and unique, multimedia work by Sheema Muneer. Inspired by 17th c Palampore designs from the Coromandel coast these patterns were very popular in the Dutch, English and American colonies.

The tree of life was one of the patterns that was painted or hand blocked and gained popularity in this period. Indian aesthetics were instrumental in creating an European interpretation for the trade of textiles and it still continues to influence textile patterns and production.

Muneer has based her art with shells and enhancing the pattern with hand painting. Her interpretation of Kalamkari (detailed ink work) finishes off the enhancement in these details. Every single shell has been placed by hand! The color palette reflects a softness replicating natural dyes as the master dyers of old India used and the painting technique creates patina, resulting from multiple layers of work.
